SOCHE's Leadership Development Committee launched a three-part series centered on "Navigating Your Career." If you've found yourself asking any of the following questions, this series of workshops is PERFECT for you:

- How does my career align with my life aspirations?
- What do I REALLY want to be when I grow up?
- Am I on the right track or what will it take to get there?
- Is it about knowing the right people, doing the right things, or both? And how do I do all of this?

Does this sound familiar? Look to the following workshops for answers to put you in the right direction.

Join us for the second workshop in the series Positive Politics in the Workplace.

Description of Workshop

In order to become politically effective, one must begin by understanding that organizational politics IS a reality in every company. Some people go to great lengths to say that they are not political and there are no organization politics in their company. That because it's usually viewed as negative "back stabbing" behaviors. Organizational politics is just part of fabric of business life and to understand who and how companies make decisions can only make you more effective in doing your job.

Are you aware of the power of positive organizational politics? Your understanding of politics in the workplace can easily mean the difference between advancing in your job and losing it. More jobs are lost and advancement denied because of poorly played office politics than any other reason. Join us to determine the level of your own tendencies in the area of organizational politics, learn 10 keys for being politically effective, and develop a plan to manage your political equity account.
